A Letter from our Leadership

Our March 16th virtual Summit was an overwhelming success! We heard from the leaders in suicide injury prevention who shared the latest evidence-based science, and from 20 abstract presenters spread worldwide. Thank you to all who helped run or attend this event that drew 1,560 attendees from 63 countries. Read on to access recordings and read posters. Our Center was also well represented at the SAVIR E-conference - see below for the topics and presenters, and to register to access full content.

We're excited to share new resources including a new, updated version of our injury massive open online course (MOOC) that includes the new areas of health inequities, ACES, and drowning (free CME, ABP MOC Part II, and
We also invite you to explore other news we’ve shared below, including 45 recent articles published by our faculty, as well as fellowship and job opportunities we’ve shared on our website.

We thank you all for your commitment to injury prevention science and we want to acknowledge the incredible work you do in our community in response to COVID-19. With the continued progress in COVID-19 vaccinations, we hope that the year will bring much positive change for our research community. Thank you to our large group of academic, community, and public health partners for contributing to the Center's success.
